

Encountering Stories

4th, 5th & 6th June 2021
Mill House Farm, Earl Soham
Suffolk
Hosted by Giles Barrow

'They say' not that we are storytellers, but that our lives are 'storied'. To discover that this is so, is to not only find our vocation, but live an undivided life in which we live, love and work out of who we are. During these days together we will begin by hearing stories from the outside and then listen to the ones that come from within. We will start to craft our tale, acknowledging what it has cost us, who has upheld us and then ponder, for whom is the harvest?

This is an introduction to story designed for those captivated by the power of old tales to speak to our contemporary circumstances. It's an opportunity to gather around the fire, listen into stories, take time in nature and begin to discover what it is to weave between 'clock-time' and that of the tales themselves.

We will be leaning into the approach to story-telling, carried by Martin Shaw from the School of Myth in Devon. Drawing on his writings and teachings, as well as that of others, we'll experience story as ecological activism and a powerful route toward reconnecting with soul, soil and society.
